The appearance of these rare and historically prominent warbirds will be a source of fascination and inspiration.

The Supermarine Spitfire is the hero of the Battle of Britain along with its counterpart, the Hurricane, and the pilots who flew them.

They are what inspired Winston Churchill to make his famous statement: "Never, in the field of human conflict, have so many owed so much to so few".

The Mitsubishi A6M3 Zero was the terror of the Pacific skies at the outset of WWII.

These two superb airplanes and their pilots fought multiple duels to the death over the skies of northwestern Australia in the series of encounters known as the Battle of Darwin.

Come and see the warbirds and meet the pilots who will fly them in for this event.
